Big Three In Conference In Black Sea Area

HOPE RAISED OF ALLIED ACCORD ON PEACE PLAN

Strategy Already Decided To Insure Defeat Of Hitler's Hordes

COMPROMISES EXPECTED

Parley Opens In Town Which Earlier In War Teemed With Hun Troops

BULLETIN

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Diplomatic quarters believed today that one of the momentous decisions to be announced at the end of the Big Three conference may be the formation of a military board by America, Britain and Russia to deal the death blow to the German army.

Observers here believe the Russians now are ready—for the first time—to join the Americans and British in the formation of a military committee that will execute the strategy planned by President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. Military experts already are working on the decisions made by the Big Three.

CAIRO, Feb. 8.—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin opened their conference Monday at a town where in the Black Sea area which earlier in the war teemed with German troops, it was reported today.

Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill reached the rendezvous first, and worked like beavers while waiting for Stalin's arrival some time Sunday afternoon, according to reliable reports here.

Five-star American Generals, British field marshals and Soviet military leaders were believed to have started their conferences six days ago as a prelude to the second meeting of Mr. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Announcement of the Big Three conference raised great hope here today that the meeting in the Black Sea area is reaching real agreement on Europe's peace time future and the style of Germany's post-surrender straightjacket.

President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Premier Josef V. Stalin have agreed on the strategy to insure Germany's military defeat. Now they have begun political and economic talks. These latter are the key to the future, perhaps the most important conversations in the memory of any living person.

The world will pay for any mistakes made on the Black Sea shores and benefit from all wise decisions.

No Long Policing
Mr. Roosevelt is believed to have told Churchill and Stalin that the United States prefers not to participate in the ultimate, long-term policing of Germany. It is understood that task is to be assigned to Great Britain and the Soviet Union with the possible assistance of France. We would participate directly in postwar occupation, but for a limited time only.

Compromises by all three toward mutual over-all agreements generally are expected. Assurances that United States troops would not be among the semi-permanent European police detail could count heavily toward winning American acceptance of such compromises as the President may have to make.

Both Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill are reported planning to speed directly home from the conference to rally public support. Tentatively scheduled side trips apparently have been abandoned.

Big Three Conference Stirs Huns

Psychological Warfare Value Being Exploited To Full Extent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Big Three conference announcement was a propaganda bomb intended to give unhappy Germans a dreadful shudder.

If their morale was sagging yesterday, it should be drooping today. That is the way the war psychologists estimate the unveiling of the Black Sea area conference.

The Allied leaders broke the precedent of their first meeting by officially announcing this one, and its purpose, while it was still in progress.

Observers believed today that a primary purpose in doing this was to exploit the psychological warfare value of the conference to the utmost at this moment while Allied armies are biting deeper into the Reich. The crumbling of Allied censorship efforts to keep the meeting secret also may have been a factor.

All the agencies of Allied propaganda immediately began hammering at the German people the conference theme that there is no hope for them save surrender. No hope for dividing the Allies.

President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, proclaimed:

"... plans for completing the defeat of the common enemy..." "complete agreement for joint military operations in the final phase..." "joint plans for the occupation and control of Germany."

At the close of the meeting there will be another statement, presumably more detailed. The device of having two pronouncements from the conference provides more material for the instruments of nerve warfare against the Germans at this crucial time.

As far as the mere fact that a meeting is being held is concerned, yesterday's statement of course merely confirmed what the world has known for some days. Even the scene had been pretty well narrowed down in stories passed by the British censorship and in en-

BIG JAP PORT AGAIN POUNDED BY SUPERFORTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Lone B-29 Superfortresses made two more bombing attacks on the big Japanese seaport of Kobe early today, Radio Tokyo reported.

"Extremely slight" damage was caused in the second raid, Tokyo said, but none in the first.

A strong force of B-29's from India hit the Rama VI bridge on the Bangkok-Moulmein railway in Thailand yesterday, a dispatch from 20th bomber command headquarters said. Two thirds of the center span were knocked into the river below.

Another India-based force of B-29's attacked targets at Saigon, Japanese-occupied naval base in French Indo-China, with unobserved results. All Superfortresses returned safely from both missions.

A communique from advanced Pacific fleet headquarters said Marine bombers hit two vessels in the Bonin and Volcano Islands south of Japan Tuesday night.

LONDON HAILS SPEED OF PLAN TO CRUSH HUNS

LONDON, Feb. 8.—British official quarters today hailed the speed with which President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin reached an agreement on the military defeat of Germany.

Particular satisfaction was felt that the Russians on one side and British and Americans on the other were exchanging full information on the military situation. There had been some feeling that operations on the Eastern and Western fronts in the past have been carried out too independently of one another.

THE SPIDER-LIKE ATTACHMENT on the prow of a U. S. Marine tank is the Seabee's answer to the perilous problem of enemy-sown land mines. The mine-detonator consists of a number of chain-tipped flails mounted on tubular hubs which revolve to whirl the flail around, detonating contact mines by lashing the ground and creating magnetic field to set off magnetic mines. ### HENRY WEBER GETS LIFE TERM

Death Sentence Commuted For G. I. Who Refused Order To Drill

CAMP ROBERTS, Calif., Feb. 8.—Pvt. Henry Weber, who said he was opposed to war, hate and killing, today was under sentence of life imprisonment at hard labor after a court martial board commuted his death penalty for refusing to obey an order to drill.

The general court martial, which returned the verdict after having been ordered to reconsider the case, directed at the same time that Weber be dishonorably discharged from the Army.

A reviewing authority will determine the place of imprisonment.

The Socialist Labor party, New York, left-wing group of which Weber is a member, promised through its regional head, Hebert Steiner, that it would do everything possible to "see that he gets justice."

"The punishment still doesn't fit the crime," Steiner said.

He said the party was not pacifist, but opposed the capitalist system which produces war. Some of its members have gone into conscientious objectors' camps or non-combatant groups, he said.

The American Civil Liberties union said it was opening an investigation into what a spokesman termed a possible case of "error."

DECISIONS OF BIG THREE NOT TO BIND FRANCE

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Government circles said today that France would not consider herself bound by any decisions reached by the Allied Big Three without consulting her.

Confirmation that the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meeting was under way without French participation fanned the bitterness with which the French press has been discussing the conference since Gen. Charles de Gaulle's speech Monday.

The French attitude was that it was unfair to leave France out of any discussion of the future of Germany since she is the Reich's closest neighbor and has suffered more than any other country from German invasions in the last 150 years.

The French argued further that Britain and the United States in the course of time were bound to pull gradually out of Europe, leaving France the main burden of policing and militarily controlling Germany.

JAPS SAY FLEET WILL PLAY ROLE IN BIG ATTACK

By United Press

Radio Tokyo said today that the Japanese will open a counter-offensive soon in the Philippines with the support of their fleet.

The counter-offensive will touch off "some of the greatest battles the world has ever known," Tokyo quoted the official Domei Agency as saying.

Though the United States can afford to lose the battle of Luzon, Domei said, "it is not so with Japan." Japan must win if she is to survive, the agency explained.

If Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita plans to retire to Southern Luzon, Domei said, "The imperial Japanese navy will not only protect his flanks but also keep him in operational contact with Japanese garrisons entrenched in numerous Japanese-held islands to the south."

The broadcast was recorded by the FCC.

COLEPAUGH IN COURT TELLS OF NAZI TRAINING

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Federal Bureau of Investigation testimony revealed William C. Colepaugh today as an American who sored on his own people, studied Nazi tricks in Germany and came home a spy.

On trial with German-born Erich Gimpel for espionage and sabotage, Colepaugh faced a seven-man military commission holding his third day's sessions in secret on Governor's Island today.

Yesterday, William M. McClue, special FBI agent, told the commission that Colepaugh voluntarily admitted he came to this country in a Nazi submarine to gather information and send it to Germany by short wave radio. He denied, McClue said, that he intended to commit sabotage.

McClue said Colepaugh had $1,900 cash on him when he was arrested here late in December. The money was part of $50,000 given him and Gimpel when they left Germany. McClue said most of the cash was recovered from a traveling bag checked at the Grand Central terminal.

Colepaugh shared other New Yorkers' hardship in finding housing, McClue said, but finally got an apartment through newspaper advertising. McClue said Colepaugh told him he was disappointed when his German instructors in sabotage and espionage told him he could not have "the privilege" of serving in the German army.

Colepaugh said he was discouraged, McClue testified, when informed he would be sent home as a Nazi agent.

JAPAN TELLS HUNS SHE EXPECTS THEM TO WIN

By United Press

Japan has informed Germany she "confidently expects" a German victory in Europe, the Domei agency said today in a broadcast recorded by the FCC.

The message was handed to Heinrich Stahmer, German ambassador to Japan, Domei said.

BRITONS DIE ON WAY TO PARLEY

Gas Shortage Blamed For Crash Of Air Transport Costing 20 Lives

LONDON, Feb. 8.—A shortage of gasoline was blamed today for the crash of a transport plane in which 20 Britons flying to the Big Three conference were killed or injured February 1.

Ten persons were known dead, five missing and believed dead, and five injured.

Aboard the plane were six members of the foreign office, five members of the war office, two Royal Air Force fliers and seven crewmen.

London newspapers said the plane crashed into the sea after developing motor trouble attributed to insufficient gasoline. When the engines sputtered and stopped, the pilot headed for the nearest landing ground, but was unable to reach the coast. The plane broke in two in the sea.

There was no immediate explanation of the shortage of gasoline. News of the crash was withheld until start of the Big Three conference had been announced.

The dead were:

From the foreign office: P. N. Loxley, private secretary to Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent head of the foreign office; Miss P. M. Sullivan, a secretary and daughter of Col. Arthur Sullivan of Winnipeg, Canada; A. R. Drew, J. Chaplin, R. M. Guthrie and Detective Sgt. H. J. Battley.

From the war office: Lt. Col. I. S. H. Hooper, Lt. Col. W. G. Newey and Capt. A. K. Charlesworth.

From the air ministry: Group Capt. P. S. Jackson-Taylor. Missing and believed dead were W. H. Finch, from the war office; Flying Officer A. S. Appleby, Flight Sgt. A. C. J. Walker, Warant Officer W. Wright and Leading Aircraftman J. Chicken, members of the crew.

Air Commodore H. A. C. Anderson of the air ministry was injured seriously.

WAR IN PACIFIC PROBABLY NOT PARLEY TOPIC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Past experience strongly suggests that the war in the Pacific and Russia's possible participation are not being mentioned at the Big Three conference now under way.

Soviet diplomats and military men repeatedly have rebuffed efforts to open the subject. There is every evidence that they resent its discussion.

Their stock reply to all overtures has been: "We are neutral."

There is little complaint among American military men about Russian neutrality. On the contrary, most of them emphasize the need for Russia to avoid a two front war.

When the war in Europe is over—hmm?

ITALY PAYS BIG PRICE FOR ROLE OF HUN STOOGES

Pantelleria To Be Given To Britain And Trieste To Yugoslavia

"HARSHNESS" PROTESTED

Congressional Source Gives First Information On Terms Of Peace

(Editors Note:—The world has eagerly awaited announcement of the closely-guarded Allied armistice terms for Italy as a gauge to the penalties the Axis nations must pay for precipitating World War II. The following United Press dispatch indicates for the first time the stringent conditions set forth in the Italian armistice.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A congressional source said today that the Italian armistice terms call on Italy to give up all her colonies, turn over the Mediterranean island of Pantelleria to Great Britain, and possibly cede the Adriatic port of Trieste to Yugoslavia.

The armistice terms signed Sept. 3, 1943, have never been made public despite considerable agitation in this country and in Italy. The White House, state department and war department have repeatedly declined to do so on grounds of military security.

Harshness Protested

The controversy over the Italian armistice terms is based on charges that they are too harsh, and Italian sources have felt that is why the Allies never have made them public. The armistice terms signed with Axis satellites—Finland, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary—were made public immediately. Italy was a full-fledged axis member.

The congressional source said that the terms were so harsh that Italian Premier Ivanoe Bonomi sent President Roosevelt a 100-page letter last September listing specific grievances.

"The armistice terms for Italy could have been no stronger had they been for Germany," the congressional source told the United Press. "The only saving clause was one that provided for amendment of final peace terms in accordance (Continued on Page Two)

HUNS PREPARE DEFIANT REPLY TO BIG THREE

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Nazi propagandists were believed preparing a defiant and sarcastic reply to the announcement that the Allied Big Three were plotting Germany's final defeat and post-war control of the Reich.

German news agencies carried the Allied announcement without comment for foreign consumption, but have not yet relayed it to the German people.

Dr. Otto Dietrich, German press chief, gave a clue to the probable German propaganda line yesterday when—several hours before the Allied announcement—he denounced President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin as the "greatest war criminals of all time."

"They have made known that they have two aims to pursue," Dr. Dietrich said. "They want to make the German people give themselves up by a maneuver of agitation, and they want to promise eternal peace to a gullible humanity."

"They have not succeeded in persuading people in past years to capitulate. . . they will not succeed now, either."

FBI DRYDOCKS ONE MAN NAVY

Self Styled Skipper Who Recited Heroic Deeds Nabbed For Fraud

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8.—Joseph John Fabian Hannon, 58, a self-styled one-man navy who said he once sank two Japanese submarines, was drydocked today on charges of fraud and impersonating an officer.

Hannon, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said, posed as a high-ranking naval officer and hero of the non-existent army transport "Great Scott" to mulct thousands of dollars in return for promises of government loans and contracts.

In 1942, FBI Chief Nat Pieper said, Hannon commissioned himself a lieutenant commander and persuaded a San Francisco cement company to make him director of the organization. He disappeared shortly thereafter, with $2,000 "expense" money for a trip to Washington to swing a Navy contract for the firm.

An additional $1,500 was given him by an unidentified private citizen for whom Hannon was said to have promised, through his Navy connections, a $4,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to finance a west coast manufacturing project.

Last year, Pieper said, Hannon defrauded an elderly Providence R. I. couple of $1,620. At that (Continued on Page Two)

ARMY PLANE ON MERCY FLIGHT TO SAVE BABY

HILL FIELD, UTAH, Feb. 8.—A C-54 Army transport plane winged its way east on a mercy flight today, carrying a tiny, four-day-old girl to Boston for an emergency operation that may save her life.

The baby, the daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Hyman Weisberg, of Brooklyn, now stationed at the Army Air Forces overseas replacement depot at Kearns, Utah, was born with a throat obstruction that prevents passage of food to her stomach.

The child must be operated on within the next two days if it is to survive physicians said. It will be taken to Dr. W. E. Ladd, Boston baby specialist for the operation.

American First Army troops overran the Siegfried line bastion of Schmidt today in the center of the Roer river dam system, fighting for control of the waters which are the strategic key to defense of the Cologne plain. Both the First and Third Armies were tearing holes in the west wall on a front of more than 75 miles.

On the Eastern front, German broadcasts said the First White Russian Army was expanding four bridgeheads across the Oder river covering Berlin against furious resistance. The Russians were fighting on a 55-mile arc in the Frankfurt-Kuestrin area extending at its nearest point to within 31 miles of Berlin.

In the Pacific, American forces turned their artillery on the Japanese still holding out in the burning southern half of Manila. The last Japanese nests had been cleared out of the northern part of the capital, but the enemy had cut off the remainder by blowing up all the bridges over the Pasig river.

HOPE RAISED OF ALLIED ACCORD ON PEACE PLAN

Strategy Already Decided To Insure Defeat Of Hitler's Hordes

simultaneously yesterday in London, Moscow and Washington. Berlin already had accurately broken the news of time and place.

The announcement said the three men with their foreign ministers, chiefs of staff and advisers—probably Harry L. Hopkins for the President—were meeting in the Black Sea area. The Big Three have completed their military discussion and the staff chiefs are working out details for Germany's early defeat.

Foundations For Peace

In search of "firm foundations for a lasting peace," the conferees now have begun the other phase of their conference.

"These discussions," the communique said, "will cover joint plans for the occupation and control of Germany, the political and economic problems of liberated Europe and proposals for the earliest possible establishment of a permanent international organization to maintain peace."

Language of the progress report communique committed the conferees to discussion of "joint plans" for Europe's political and economic future. That is a large order. Another communique was promised when the conference ends.

Possible Plans

General Black Sea conference plans for postwar Germany are understood to be as follows:

1. Destruction of Germany's war making potential centered in heavy industry, the aviation industry and the synthetic industry.
2. Prevention of German living standards from improving more rapidly than those of her ravished neighbors.
3. Assurance that Germany shall aid in reconstruction of her neighbors' economies, notably by provision of materials and forced labor.

Mr. Roosevelt is known to have been strongly convinced that Germany must survive in some form, but tailored geographically. He is believed to be proposing that Prussia shall be separated from all else in Germany—Prussia being damned as the seat of German belligerency. But the extent to which Germany shall be further diminished—if at all—is subject to discussion.

No Planes, Subs

Germany would be deprived of airplanes and submarines, the facilities to manufacture them, and, possibly, the privilege of teaching her people to fly. The conception of "grounding" an entire nation is understood to be Mr. Roosevelt's own.

Germany would be disarmed. The Black Sea conferees are expected to complete and perhaps to announce a peace-time plan for international policing and regular inspection of Germany to prevent nullification of armaments prohibitions this time as Germany so deftly nullified them after World War I.

If inspection found Germany cheating, her borders would be closed. If cheating persisted, air police with bombs would enforce the regulations.

A distinction is made between the initial period of "occupation" of Germany and the ultimate period of international police control. The United States will participate with its armed forces in Germany's "occupation" as hostilities cease.

Occupation Plans

Occupation plans are expected to put Berlin in joint Anglo-American-Russian custody. Russian troops would occupy Eastern Germany, British troops Northwestern Germany, and American troops Southwestern Germany. Early plans called for Anglo-American occupation of the Rhineland. It is likely that France now will share in that.

Some officials here talk of occupation in terms of "until 2000 AD"—a matter of 50 to 55 years. President Roosevelt, however, is believed to feel that the American people would not accept such direct responsibility for the peace of Europe on such long terms. Churchill is understood to have felt—at least at one time—that the Americans would and should accept responsibility for keeping forces in Europe for many years.

Roosevelt's Idea

Mr. Roosevelt's idea is understood to be that the enforcing power of the regulations under which a surrendered Germany must live would be the United Nations (Dumbarton Oaks organization) with full United States participation and complete acceptance of that responsibility. But the implement would be British, Russian and French international police—no Americans. If the police were unable to handle the job they could call for help—and get it—including American troops if needed.

The President's idea of a likely period of initial "occupation" of Germany is understood to be about a year.

He would prefer that 12 months

THE HAPPIEST DAY OF HIS LIFE

IN THE RHODES GENERAL HOSPITAL at Utica, N. Y., Pvt. George Lott, 22, whose case gained wide attention when a national magazine depicted his Odyssey from the battlefield to the United States, is shown as he heard the cheering medical verdict that he will again be able to use his hands and arms. Pvt. Lott, an orphan, manages to smile despite his great suffering as he tells the world: "This is my happiest day!" The markings on his cast are sketches made by doctors of the many fractures in both arms, facilitating quick identification. Attending surgeons say that Pvt. ger of the Lublin Polish government, which Russia recognizes, with the London Polish government. The latter is recognized by the United States and Great Britain.

There has been some apprehension here that events, with or without assistance from Moscow, will lead to the postwar communization of Europe.

Churchill rather than Mr. Roosevelt is expected to take the lead in seeking any assurance from Stalin on that question. It has been repeatedly emphasized here by well informed persons that on the continent of Europe neither the United States nor Great Britain has any really enforceable demands.

Moscow wants postwar credits, heavy machinery and technical aid from us. Those are bargaining points. But beyond bargaining and persuasion there does not appear to be any means by which Stalin could be prevented from adopting such continental policies as may seem desirable to him.

MACARTHUR

"I go, but I shall return," said Gen. Douglas MacArthur when the present Japanese war began and his Commander-in-Chief ordered him to leave Manila. It was painful for him to adopt a course of action which seemed to abandon our Filipinos to their fate, but as a good soldier he silently obeyed.

The intervening years have seemed long and hard, but MacArthur was busy with his job. At last success has come. The Philippines are redeemed, the insolent and cruel Japs are being swept out, and apparently before long the heroic task will be finished.

What then? If it were near the end of a presidential term, and not merely the beginning, probably there would be a demand to make MacArthur president. But probably it is just as well, for him and the country, that any such project is necessarily rather distant.

Our military heroes have seldom made first-class Presidents. There are factors essentially different in the two types of mind. MacArthur, too, is getting well along in years. As matters stand, he seems destined to emerge from this war with enough fame and glory for any American.

OUT OF STEP

NAZISM is a movement which learns nothing and forgets nothing. It represents a determined effort on the part of the German nation to dominate the world. Its leaders have their own purposes of exploitation and grandeur, and its people supinely follow, at whatever cost, in the footsteps of glory and crime. This seems to be the prevailing trend of the German nation today.

Obviously such an attitude is an inheritance from days when nations in general were more belligerent than they are now. It indicates that Germany has not moved with the times, and is out of step with the modern world. The present war is an upsurge of antique savagery. Militarists in places of power raise new standards, but it is the same old game of lawlessness and conquest.

How much longer must this barbarism continue, in a world which otherwise has attained so high a level of civilization? The weapons become more powerful and the prize more glittering, in the eyes of leaders eager for power. The killers of civilization must themselves be slain to save our modern world.

New Army jet planes are undergoing winter tests in Alaska. Why send them so far? They can get all the winter they need right here.

In all this talk about what punishment shall be meted out to Hitler, there is a sense of unreality. Many people remember the first part of the recipe for roasting a hare, which is: "First catch your hare."

Congresswoman Bolton Speaks Scribe Wonders if F. D. R. Is
Out on Shortage of Nurses Really Hopeful for Wallace

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—The capital on the Pow-to-mack is wonderful pickings this week for a critical columnist. The most entertaining rows are going on in every corner.

Printer's ink bubbles and air waves bounce as commentators write and talk about the Jesse Jones-Henry Wallace free-for-all. About the charge of Congressman Frances Bolton that slightly ailing Army wives keep in attendance at Walter Reed hospital special nurses who might be used to care for wounded soldiers.

In regard to the Jones-Wallace bout, I believe the hunch some people have that President Roosevelt has his tongue in his cheek as the Senate rears on its hind legs at its former presiding officer. I believe the president has "stood Henry out in front" knowing he would be knocked down at confirmation time. He deliberately stood Wallace out in front at nominating time at the Chicago convention.

Vice President Harry Truman has told friends he was informed by several of those close to the throne boys a few days before the Democratic convention began that Wallace was to be used as "a fall guy." He would wobble about a little and then topple over. By that time Jimmy Byrnes and Alben Barkley would have been gotten out of the way. The V. P. coast then would have been clear for Truman.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER
(Subbing for Mallon)

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—A trade paper the other day printed an obscure note to the effect that Famous Music Corp. had contracted to pay a $5,000 advance and six cents a copy of sheet music to a couple of guys for a song. Since this is two or three times the kind of money that Tin Pan Alley usually kicks around in such deals, I took a quick hike over to the Brill building, which is constructed of sharps and flats instead of the customary brick and mortar, and looked up Mr. Famous.

He turned out to be a quiet, medium-done sort of fellow known to the trade as Sid Kornheiser, general manager of Famous and of Paramount Music Corp., both wholly owned subsidiaries of Paramount Pictures. And he had several reasons for the unusual money deal with Kermit Goell and Ted Shapiro for their ballad "He's Home For A Little While," which has just been published and is just beginning to make its mark in radio and on records.

"Last December I got reports from some of the boys on the coast about this song being surefire. I phoned Ted Shapiro out there and he read Goell's lyrics to me. Then he dragged the piano over to the phone and played the song. He played it again, reciting the lyrics. It was for me if I could get it.

"But the writers had turned down a hatful of publishers. They were strong for publishing the number themselves. Besides they weren't too sold on the idea of giving a pop song to a firm that deals primarily in the scores of musical pictures of its parent concern. They were afraid their own number might get snowed under.

"Overcoming those obstacles accounts for the high price, which is at least double that given for a popular song as far as I know."

Kornheiser doesn't always pay advances in currency, however. There was the time late last summer when he dropped into the now defunct Hurricane night club to listen to Duke Ellington. He heard the Duke fooling around on the piano with a melody that sounded good and on inquiry found it was just a little something the composer had whipped up as an instrumental number for his saxophonist. No lyrics. Kornheiser scared up a lyric writer, the Duke put the melody into standard form and the result was "Don't You Know I Care?"

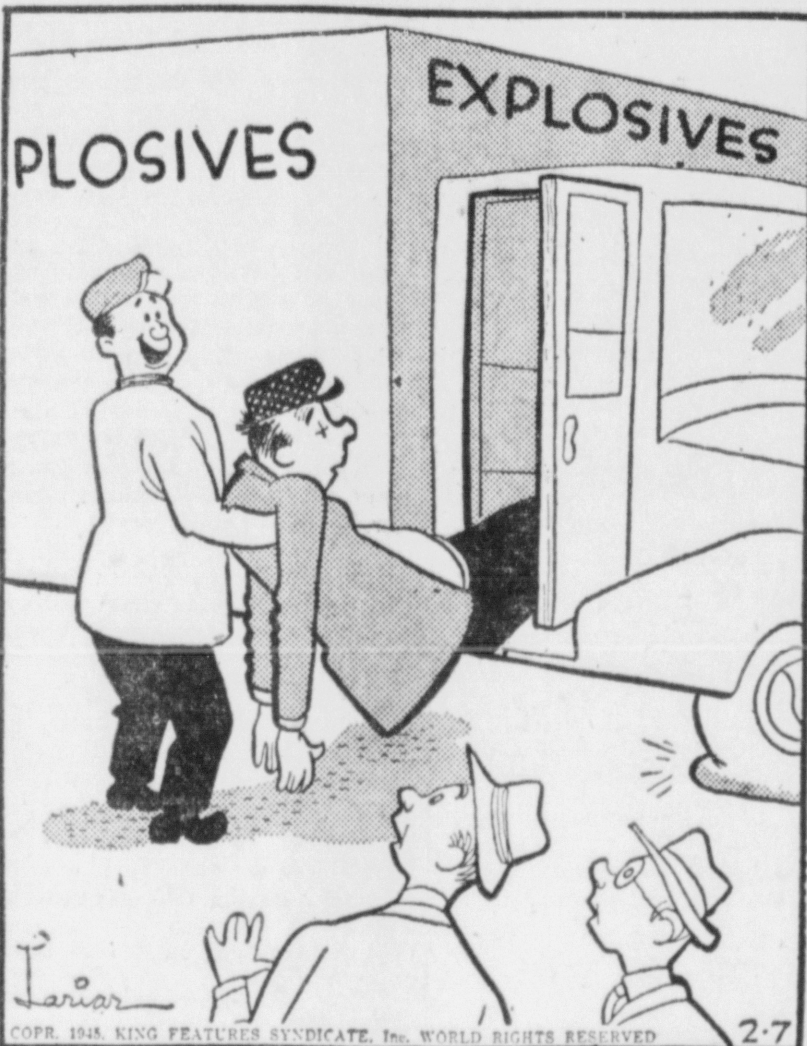

"But I was stumped about the matter of an advance to the Duke," Kornheiser said. "After all, what can you offer a man in his position? The usual money advance would be almost an insult and you couldn't afford to pay what he was worth. The Duke settled the matter quite easily. I was wearing a pretty loud necktie a friend had given me and Ellington said he admired it. I took it off, gave it to him, we shook hands and that was the advance."

Kornheiser has done practically everything there is to do in the music publishing business, from errand boy on up. He sort of inherited the profession, for his father, Phil, was one of the founders of the Famous Leo Feist firm. He got his start after quitting the University of Pennsylvania when he was a junior. And he still regards himself as a song-plugger.

Like all publishers he is always scrambling around for new writers, yet is compelled to return unopened the hundreds of unsolicited manuscripts that are mailed in, mostly by rank amateurs. He has an appointment later this week to see a couple of soldiers who claim they have a

TREATMENT OF HEADACHE
By Dr. Herman N. Bundesen
President, Chicago Board of Health

There are many known causes of headache and there are some headaches for which we do not know the cause. One of the known causes is increased pressure within the brain. This is brought about by swelling of the brain tissue due to a collection of fluid and is known as cerebral edema. The edema may develop because of disturbances in the circulation of blood.

In treating headache caused by cerebral edema, certain salt solutions have been used, such as ammonium chloride. This solution has also been employed to get rid of the symptoms of restlessness and headache which often are present in women before their regular periods.

Doctor Carl Pfeiffer of Wayne University, and his co-workers of the University of Chicago have tried such salt solutions in the treatment of migraine headaches. In migraine there is severe headache with sickness to the stomach and vomiting, sometimes dizziness, and disturbances of the vision.

When salt solutions are given, they tend to increase the volume of blood since more fluids will enter the blood when more of the various salts are present. This increase in blood volume helps to get rid of the edema of the brain through speeding up the circulation. Salt solutions in addition will cause an increased activity of the kidneys.

Doctor Pfeiffer and his co-workers, consequently, searched for a mixture of salts which would increase the blood volume without increasing kidney action, and they finally found that a mixture of calcium lactate and potassium chloride was suitable. They tried out their treatment on about 150 patients. They started with a large dose of the mixture and then, when symptoms were relieved, the dose was decreased. If the patients continued with the large doses over a period of several months, the symptoms tended to recur.

Doctor Pfeiffer and his co-workers also noted that if treatment was stopped altogether, the headaches came back, but again were relieved when the salt solution mixture was used for them. It is also interesting to note that if the headaches were limited to the left side, relief was obtained more frequently than when the headaches were on the right side. The salts were given in capsules and only rarely did they upset the stomach. Some patients reported that they felt better in general and that their minds were more active. If too many of the capsules were taken, dull headaches were likely to develop.

It is suggested, in tarrying out the treatment with the salt mixture, that the mixture be given at the first sign of a headache. One of the advantages of this treatment is that pain-relieving drugs, such as aspirin, can be used at the same time as the salt mixture is employed.

In a later series of patients, nacin was added to the salt mixture, and the results were even better than with the salt alone.

It would appear that further studies of the use of salt mixtures in the treatment of migraine will determine the exact benefits which are to be obtained from its use, and that truly would be good news to the millions of sufferers of migraine headache.

Tomorrow, Dr. Bundesen will discuss "Hypoglycemia." (Dr. Bundesen will answer letters containing medical questions only through his column.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

Danielle said, "I feel—better than I have—ever since it happened. Do you mind my chucking the whole business on you?"

Aggie grinned. "Yeah. It's quite a load."

She sighed. "You're a very funny man. You look like a cartoon professor. In the club—you're about as comfortable as a rabbit in a lion's cave. And yet—the things you know! The things you've done!"

"Nonsense. Sifting dust in ruined cities. Measuring the heads of native rug weavers."

"Nonsense, yourself! I had Dad borrow a couple of your books from Sarah. You've got more nerve than Tarzan—and a vocabulary that makes a sap out of Webster's dictionary. Come on. Take me to dinner. It'll make people talk. Whoever I dine with—it makes people talk. You'll blush—and that's ridiculous—for a man that attacked a gorilla with a garden fork."

Aggie blushed as they started into the club.

Danielle took his arm. "I wish things weren't like this," she said. "I wish I'd met you long ago—and some other way." She laughed. "Or married you when I was six. Like those natives in India you wrote about. You'd make such an interesting husband. So nice to go on trips with. There's Beth! Are you as keen about her as the rumors say? She's extremely beautiful—and I suppose—having spent so much time in the tropics—you prefer brunettes."

She looked at him wickedly and his blush deepened. But the glimmer in her eyes faded back to anxiety. "I'm incorrigible," she said.

Aggie walked back to Rainbow Lodge in the early part of the evening. He had left Danielle at the club—with Ralph Patton and Beth and Bill Calder. Left her sitting with them, talking, killing time, listening to the radio. It seemed to Aggie that, having told all she knew, she had completely relaxed. The burden was now on his shoulders. He had no idea what to do about it. If Sarah were only a little less silent and truculent—more confiding—he would tell her. He decided, as he walked, that he would tell Sarah part of it, anyway. He needed help.

She was in bed. Around her were unread books, unplayed games, unopened magazines. She looked at her nephew with disturbed eyes and said, "If you want to learn patience and humility, try the mumps! What's afoot?"

"Well—for one thing—they haven't found Bogarty's body."

"I know it! We were here—making a sick call—and prying harder than a burglar's jimmy on the subject of Hank."

"I was wondering," Aggie said, "if you happen to have any old fox traps lying about?"

Sarah squinted at him. "Thou—sant! Help yourself. Wes told me about the fox. What good will it do you to catch it?"

He shrugged. "I just have a hunch I'd like to—that's all. Like to see that collar. Like to check the teeth with pictures of the bite on Calder's hand. I'm not kidding."

"Well—if you really want to—I'll have Windle get you some, in the morning. I doubt if it will help you find out who killed Jim—"

"Oh, I know that. What I want to find out is—where's Hank?"

Sarah was staring at Aggie as he had expected. "You know—?"

He was almost supercilious. "Oh, yes. George Davis."

"Don't be an idiot!"

"He had reasons for doing it of which we are all aware. He's strong enough and decisive enough. His alibi for that night is rotten. Circumstantial evidence shows he was probably on the scene of the crime shortly after diagnosing you—removing traces of his original presence. A brilliant analytical mind—broken down after years of morbid and vengeful brooding. Oh, yes. George is our man. Question is—shall I turn him in? Danielle put it up to me."

"Danielle! What's she got to do with it?"

"Oh—she did the rehanding catching."

"You're not serious, Aggie!"

"Perfectly."

His aunt was silent for an unconscionably long time. George didn't do it," she said finally. "I've known him like the palm of my hand—ever since he cracked his first speller. At least—if he did do it—he's gone crazy."

"People do," said Aggie.

"I'd suspect Danielle herself—before I'd dream of George! I'd suspect Byron Waite. Or that strong, silent young Patton boy. Greed, there. Beth—who hated her father. Old John, here. Bill—or Martha—"

"Jack Browne even. Or myself. George is as relentless as rock! His sense of values wouldn't permit him to waste time thinking about murder. As a surgeon, he's seen too much of life and death to be interested in it in any but an intellectual way. Rubbish, Aggie! George never did it!"

"I wanted your reaction," he grinned. "And—boy!—I did it get it. Sarah grinned.

"Nevertheless, I'm going to phone Wes and tell him to come over right away. And you're going to hear a set of circumstances that will probably result in the immediate arrest of your physician."

Sarah sagged. She seemed, suddenly, old and scared and uncertain. "I—!" She shook her head. "Never mind. Go ahead. Maybe you're right. Maybe I'm an old fool. Maybe the confidence I have in my knowledge of people is wholly misplaced! Wholly. All my life, I've been a Miss Fixit. I haven't hesitated to use any stratagem I could think of to make people do what I believed was good for them. Usually—I've been right. But I could be wrong—fundamentally."

"There's something," Aggie said, "about not being your brother's keeper, in the Bible. A good program. I'm going to phone."

He did so. Wes Wickman, however, was not at Headquarters. He was not expected until morning. The sergeant offered to send up another man. Aggie decided to wait until morning. It was a terrible decision—not from Aggie's viewpoint but from the viewpoint of chance. He went to bed awhile later and fell into a troubled sleep. A creaking of the stairs woke him up.

Sarah pushed open his door as the lights clicked on. She was wearing a heavy wrapper—a velvet one. Upon her form it looked like a fur coat. A towel, under which an ice bag audibly sagged, encircled her neck. There was red on her cheeks—high and spotty—like bad makeup.

"You're worse!" Aggie exclaimed. "I'll get Davis—!"

She shook her head and sat down in the largest chair in her room contained. She thrust out her feet, which were encased in lambskin boots. "Get me a stool. I want to talk."

Aggie shoved his arms into the sleeves of his dressing gown. There was no stool in his room. He made one, of a box and a pillow. He arranged his aunt's feet, and stripped a blanket from his bed to tuck around her. Then he switched on a bridge lamp and sat down, facing her. He smiled, and she smiled back at him.

"Shoot," he said.

Her first words were an apology to herself rather than a prelude to a definite subject. "I can't ask you to repeat what I'm going to tell you, Aggie, because it isn't that kind of information—and this is not a time when innocent people can be required to keep secrets. I must not say what I'm going to—"

and yet I've got to. I decided, only now, I'm old and I'm ill and I'm not as astute as I used to be. I determined that you would have to judge about things just as Danielle evidently has done." She smiled again. "It's funny. Nobody has done my thinking or my judging—ever."

Aggie reflected her expression and waited.

"It's about Hank Bogarty. Since he hasn't turned up, I'm going to tell you. Davis threatened me, if I talked. I had a long note from Waite yesterday in the same vein—and another today. I—personally—haven't anything much to lose. They have. Which is the reason I've kept my mouth shut."

"The Authority on Authorities"

"WHAT WOULD I DO?"

"What would I have done?" is a good question to ask yourself at various stages of the bidding or play. Or perhaps a better way to phrase it would be: "What holding would have caused me to do as he did?" The answer to such a question is the clue to many a situation, indicating the location of specific cards as well as the distribution of suit lengths around the table.

Both tables of a team match essayed that No Trump game contract, one making it and one being beaten two tricks. The result depended on the difference in the play of a single card. Three identical tricks started it off—the heart Q ducked, the heart J to the K and the club 3 to the Q. West playing low. Then came the decoder.

At each table the club 2 was led from the dummy, and East—who had put the 9 on the first club trick—played the 10. Now the decoder who was set used his club K and the A killed it. The heart 8 was returned to the A, and a club was then given up to the J. A switch by East to the spade 2 enabled West to score his A and follow it with the heart 9 and 7 for his side's sixth trick.

At the other table, after the club Q won the third trick, and the same club 2 was covered by the club 10, South played his 4 instead of his K. West had to play his A anyway, as it was his only remaining club. When the third heart lead was made then to the A, South was able to clear out the club J with his K. So he ran two more clubs and three diamonds to make his game, with four tricks in clubs, three in diamonds and two in hearts, giving up two spades at the end.

His clue to the location of the club A was that, if he had been in the East and held the A, he would have put it on the Q at the third trick; so West had it.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Do not use a drawer for your collection of kitchen knives, at least if you mix the knives with a lot of small culinary tools, such as can openers, mixing spoons, egg beaters, etc. If you have enough kitchen drawers, have your husband fill one with little plywood partitions that will provide a place for each knife, each place contrived so that the cutting edge of each knife fits into a slot at the bottom of its partition, and the handle of the knife is always toward you. Better still, get him to make a box to hang on the wall by your range into which you can put all the knives, blade-end down with each handle protruding far enough at the top to make easy selection of the knife you want. Or if he isn't handy with tools, you can buy cutlery boxes to put into drawers or hanging wall racks made especially for knives.

To get longer life from your foundation garments, wash them often to restore snug fit, and never rub garments surfaces together. Also do not iron the elastic sections.

COUNTY SEASON TO END FRIDAY

Pickaway Teams Play Last Cage Games Before Tournament

Last games of the 1944-45 basketball schedule in Pickaway county will be played Friday night.

Most of the teams are busy in their last games before the county tournament starts next Thursday.

Ashville, seeking its 19th victory of the season, will play host to Pickaway in the last home game of the season. The game has been designated as homecoming game and Virginia Baum has been selected as homecoming queen.

Next Tuesday Ashville ends season play at Linden McKinley.

In other strictly county games Darby plays at Scioto; Jackson at Atlanta and Monroe at Walnut.

New Holland is scheduled to go to Good Hope and Williamsport to Madison Mills.

Scioto, Atlanta and Monroe are favored to win the games to be played in the county because of their previous records. But past records mean nothing this close to tournament time and upsets are possible.

FANS LIKE NEW SCORING RULES OF CAGE GAME

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The early returns were in today on basketball's most revolutionary experiment—the awarding of extra points for long range shooting. Fans indicated they liked it, but coaches, players, and officials awaited further tests before committing themselves.

Columbia won the game 73 to 58 under the new scoring and would have been a 59 to 44 victor over Fordham under the conventional rules. It was regarded significant that the margin of difference was the same in both cases—15 points.

The changes provided that all field goals scored outside a 21-foot arc are counted three points and that fouled players had an option of taking their free throws from 21 feet for two points or from 15 feet for the regular one point. A player with which coaches and officials found least complaint was widening of the "anti-loitering" lane under the baskets to 12 feet instead of the regulation six. A player with the ball could not remain in the lane more than three seconds.

TIGERS TO PLAY AT WASHINGTON FRIDAY NIGHT

Circleville Team Must Win To Keep In Running For SCO Title

Circleville high school Tigers will go to Washington C. H. Friday night seeking to keep their place at the top of the South Central Ohio league.

The Tigers will move into a two-way tie, instead of three-way, if they win Friday. Chillicothe and Greenfield, the other two rivals for top honors, clash at Chillicothe and one will drop from the top. If Circleville loses the winner of the game at Chillicothe takes over undisputed possession of first place.

Circleville won 59-40 when Washington C. H. came here in December but since then the Blue Lions have improved while the Tigers have lost two good point makers.

Coach Roy Black probably will start Freck Heath, Jack Hennis, Jim Dade, Bob Lovensheimer and Leonard Hill at Washington. This combination was in the game during the final stages of the thriller which the Tigers won last week from Wilmington and started Saturday night at Liberty-Union.

In the other league game Friday Hillsboro and Wilmington tangle.

Pickaway County Scouts Join In Boy Scout Week Program

35TH YEAR OF ORGANIZATION TO BE OBSERVED

No Special Celebration Is Planned By Local District Committee

Circleville and Pickaway county Boy Scouts will join with Scouts all over the United States in observing Boy Scout week which starts Thursday.

Theme of the Scout week celebration is "Scouts of the World—Brothers Together." Boy Scouts, Cubs, Senior Scouts and adult leaders join in the observance.

No general observance of Boy Scout Week has been planned by the Pickaway district committee but each troop will have special programs.

Boy Scout week marks the 35th anniversary of the founding of the Scout movement in America. Since February 8, 1910, more than 12,000,000 men and boys have been active in Scouting. The present-day active enrollment is more than 1,800,000 Cubs, Scouts, Senior Scouts and adult leaders.

Boy Scouts have performed many services vital to the war effort in recent months. They have staged scrap paper drives, collected milkweed floss, aided in distribution of information of war-time agencies.

During the week Scouts will have special programs. Sunday is Boy Scout Sunday and Cubs, Boy Scouts and their leaders are asked to attend church services in uniform.

The Scout movement has become world wide since its inception in England in 1908 when Lord Baden-Powell founded the organization. There are 48 organizations throughout the world, representing 73 nationalities.

Before the war there were Scout troops in most countries of the world. Mussolini and Hitler abolished Scouting in favor of their own youth movements. In England Scouts joined in helping with the home front defenses. In the United States and other Allied countries they helped in every way they could to further the war effort.

"I don't know a thing about the song or those boys, but I've got to find out what that title means, if anything," he explained. "They call it 'The Mouse With a Rat In Her Hair'."

And that's Tin Pan Alley. Broadway's latest opening was "The Overtones" by Vincent Lawrence and with Arlene Francis, Glenda Farrell, Jack Whiting and Walter Greaza. It was directed by Elisabeth Bergner, the famous actress, and produced by her husband, Paul Czinzer, at the Booth theatre. An attempt to have sophisticated fun with the circumstances created by a husband's supposed straying after eight years of a happy marriage.
